Joyful, Tearful Reunions

West Berliners Flock to the East

By John M. Goshko

BERLIN March 29 (WP).—Thousands of West Berliners. carrying Easter gifts and flowers, began streaming through the Berlin wall today for reunions with relatives and friends they had not seen in six years or more

It was the first time since 1966 that the people of West Berlin had been allowed to make mass visits to the eastern half of the divided city. And, for those going beyond East Berlin to other destinations within Communist East Germany, today's travel was the first since 1952

Each of the crossing points where West Berliners emerged in East Berlin and came face to face with loved ones was like a stage filled with innumerable simultaneous scenes of emotion—of tears, embraces and excited cries of "My, how the children have grown."

Everyone obviously hoped that today's events were a preview of what might soon become commonplace. For the first time since the wall went up in 1961, West Berliners are savoring the expectation that before long they will be able to make regular and frequent visits to the East.

Today's visits resulted from East Germany's decision to temporarily put into effect the pending four-power Berlin agreement. Under this "goodwill gesture," the agreement's provisions about travel for West Berliners and eased traffic access to Berlin will be honored for eight days during Easter and an additional eight days during the Pentecost

In doing this, Erich Honecker's East German regime is ohviously trying to influence the West German parliament to vote for ratification of Bonn's treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland. The Soviet Union has threatened not to sign the final protocol putting the four-power agreement into effect if the treaties are not ratified.

Despite the political overtones to the gesture, the West Berliners have responded in overwhelming numbers. spokesman for the city government said that by last night about 163,000 West Berlin residents had heen given visas for

The East Germans have made stremuous efforts to insure that this "dress rehearsal" of the Berlin agreement is a success. Nine crossing points through the wall, six into East Berlin and three to East Germany proper, were opened before dawn today, and the East Germans had. greatly expanded facilities and personnel to process the arriving visitors quickly.

In fact, today's first trial almost made the East German preparations look like overkill. Although the lines of West Berliners crossing the wall kept moving steadily throughout the day, the total seemed far below the masses that many had expected. At the principal entry point—the Friedrichstrasse rail—road station—the East Germans had blocked off an end; side street and parking lot to set up dozens of bootbs for handling the West Berliners. Yet, during most of the day, dozens of policemen manning the bootbs stood around with nothing to do.

West Berlin authorities, while saying they could give number was low. This, they explained, was because many people had to work today and planned to use their visas (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Israel Counts W. Bank Vote As a Victory

JERUSALEM, March 29 (UPI).

—Results from the first municipal elections held under Israeli occupation on the West Bank of the Jordan River showed today no anti-Israel candidates succeeded. Israel halled the polling as a victory over Arah guerrilla coercion.

"There's not one in the bunch." an Arab political source said when asked about anti-Israel victors. "The voters opted for the status quo. Most of the new faces are younger men with more ability as administrators."

The source said he could not make an educated guess as to how many anti-Israel candidates there had been because none was allowed to campaign as such.

A West Bank occupation spokesman said the turnout of 84 percent of the 16,347 eligible voters male, tax-paying property owners over 21-emphasized the fallure of the guerrillas and of King Hussein of Jordan to discourage the vote.

Failure to Disrupt

"We think one of the most important things that emerged was the failure of the Arab tertorist organizations and Jordan to disrupt the election," he said, adomy:

"These elections were a kind of confrontation calling on the people to play an active role in coopcration with the military government . They were strong enough to say 'Go to hell' to those who tried to pressure them into not voting."

The official results showed that 53 incumbent councilmen retained their seats, with 30 men winning positions for the first time. Not all incumbents stood for reelection.

Among the reclected was Mayor Haj Maazous al-Masri, of Nablus, who decided to run only after Israeli occupation anthorities arrested his cousin and threatened other measures to counter guerrilla anti-election efforts in the town.

Whether he is reappointed mayor remains to be seen, for under Jordanian law-which regulated the elections the government appoints the mayors. The government in this case is the Israeli occupation authorities

Chinese Mollify Leaders of House, Invite Them as Well as Senators

WASHINGTON, Merch 29 (AP).—The mainland Chinese have invited House Democratic and Republican leaders to visit their country, thus smoothing what some said were ruffled feelings over an earlier invitation to Senate, but not House, leaders. The invitation to Reps. Hale Boggs, D. La., and Gerald

R. Ford. R., Mich., came from the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs and was relayed through the U.S. Chinese embassy contact in Paris.

An aide to Rep. Boggs said that he would accept. Rep. Ford could not immediately be reached and aides said that they did not know whether he would go. The day after his return from China, President Nixon said that he had passed on to Senate leaders Mike Mansfield, D. Mont., and Hugh Scott, R., Pa., an invitation from Premier Chon En-lai to visit China. Later, House Speaker Carl Albert told a news conference that if the President arranged an invitation for the Senate leaders, he should do the sama for the House.

it up. Mr. Sallustro was kidnapped eight days ago. Not a trace of him or his abductors has been found despite a massiva search by authorities.

Shortly before last midnight, the Italian auto firm announced that it was giving up its intense effort to rescue the executive. It said that there was no way it could meet the ERP demands.

So far the government—which had banned all dealings with the urban guerrillas—has made no official comment on today's reported communique.

Mr. Sallustro's execution originally had been slated for Sunday noon. Then the deadline was moved back twice, first to midnight Monday and finally to midnight Tuesday. Fiat had been in secret contact with the terrorist kidnappers until Monday when, the ERP said in a

Kissinger Takes Steps (a Few)

WASHINGTON, March 29 (WP).—Presidential security adviser Henry A. Kissinger yesterday went part of the way to meet demands of members of Congress anxious to question him -about 200 yards, give or take a few steps.

Mr. Kissinger crossed Pennsylvania Avenne from his office in the White House to meet informally with members of the House Foreign Affairs and Senate Foreign Relations Committees at Tayloe House, a government-owned town house on the east side of Lafayette Square.

The meetings were a marginal concession by the Nixon administration in response to congressional attempts to question Mr. Kissinger about his extremely large role in the making of forelgn policy.

Even the site of the meeting. however, underscored the White House's point: It was holding firm in its insistence that Mr. Kissinger, as a special adviser to President Nixon, is protected by executive privilege from any obligation to testify before Congress. His appearance before members of the Senate and House groups, informally and unofficially, in other words, was provided as a courtesy, not a

Nixon May Visit Iran After Russia; Kissinger Trip to Japan Slated

WASHINGTON, March 29 (WP) .- President Nixon is seriously considering the possibility of a stop in Tehran to meet with the Shah of Iran after the President's visit to the Soviet Union at the end of May, informed sources said today.

These sources said it was unlikely that the President would stop in any other country after his meetings in Moscow except for rest It was understood that the possibility had been raised and then rejected of stops also in some Arah countries and Israel. Meanwhile, the White House announced that Henry A. Kissinger assistant to the President for national security affairs, will visit Japan April 15 to 18 to confer with high officials and to meet with officers of the Japan-United States Economic Council.

Ever since the announcement last July that President Nixon intended to visit Peking, relations between Japan and the United States have been strained.

bright, D., Ark. Several House members said later that Mr. Kissinger spent about half an hour on one of the first questions: His alleged "conflict" with Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

One participant, Rep. Lester Wolff D., N.Y., who was quoted later as saying that Mr. Kissinger praised Mr. Rogers, denied that any friction exists hetween the two men, and said it is only the "middle level hureaucracy" at the Department of State that feels its influence is undermined by the role of Mr. Kissinger in the White House.

"He claimed that they were setting up a conflict that he says doesn't exist," Rep. Wolff said. Another participant, who preferred to remain anonymous, added afterward, ruefully: "Kissinger, of course, is right. There is no 'conflict'-Rogers won't is no fight."

Mr. Kissinger gave the House group a broad review of foreign policy, including the President's China trip, for which he served as the principal advance envoy. Rep. Wolff and others said that "startling" information was disclosed.

At 5:30 p.m., members of the Senate committee, headed by Sen. Fulbright, had their turn with Mr. Kissinger.

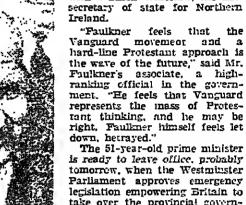

Sen. Fulbright and several other members of the committee, in addition to informal meetings with Mr. Kissinger, have been groping for legislative devices to require him to appear officially as a witness before Congress. They argue that Mr. Kissinger's functions extend far beyond the role of confidential presidential adviser. As a palliative in this unresolved dispute. the Pulbright group has suggested making a transcript of their talks with Mr. Rissinger, to have a record of the talks.

N. Vietnamese Say Resuming Of Paris Talks Is Up to U.S.

North Vietnam is waiting for the United States to take the initiative in resuming the suspended peace talks here. Hanoi's spokesman said today.

Nguyen Than Le told the press that "it is up to the American side to remedy its error" in suspending the talks indefinitely last week. He said that his delegation had made no proposal for a new meeting and indicated that it would make none.

Mr. Le's comments followed a statement from North Vietnam's Foreign Ministry last night demanding resumption of the talks and calling on "brother Socialist

William J. Porter, the American delegate, told the Com-nunists last week that he would await "some sign from you that you are disposed to engage in meaningful exchanges on the various points raised in your and our proposals." Nothing in the Hanoi statement indicated any shift from the standing Communist demands that the United States agree to set a date for total evacuation, halt the Vietnamization program and remove President Neuren Van Thieu of South Vietnam. The American delegation is un-

And if not 100 percent, there should be at least 50 or 60 percent who want to have a certain system-only then will it be possible to have it."

Ideal Situation

Mr. Tung added that the situation in the South would be ideal if "we, the Vietnamese, could smash everything—the United States and Saigon troops are foreign mercenaries."

"But we are quite realistic, and we know to do that would take a much longer time," he edded. "If it were up to me, I would like to see the whole of Vietnam unified and hullding socialism, but we are realists. We know that in South Vietnam there are certain other forces. Not only Thieu, out other people. The Communists and people who are doing the resistance work must find a way to live with other people. Only in this way can we be in conformity with objective reality." The theme that It is possible to guarantee the neutrality and independence of a caretaker government in Saigon came up recurrently in seven meetings with Col. Lau during a two-week stay in North Vietnam that ended March 17.

Not in a Rush

The colonel, considered by Western diplomats stationed here to have access to Premier Pham Van Dong, said more than once: "We are not in a rush for re-urification. Warsaw Pact Barred From Malta Bases

LONDON, March 29 (AP) .--The British government today published its new agreement with Malra for the rental of the island's military bases. The treaty hars the Warsaw Pact powers from the island but leaves Malta's ports and airfields open to other nations

The agreement, published in a white paper, a government policy statement, was signed in London Sunday by Maltese Prime Minister Dom Mintoff and British Defense Secretary Lord Carrington. The signing occurred after months of long and often bitter negotiations, with Mr. Mintoff rejecting a series of British offers and issuing a March 31 deadline for troops to leave the island.

The agreement raises the annual rent for the bases to £12.75 million. Of this, Britain will pay £5.25 million and NATO will pay the rest.

Previously, Britain was able to use the Maltese bases to meet any international obligation. The new treaty restricts the use of bases to British and NATO defense requirements.

The Maltese government now has the right to grant harbor facilities to the forces of any non-Warsaw Pact country except where exclusively reserved for Britain.

On Feb. 3 the Viet Cong in Paris
Up to U.S., presented a revised two-point relarification to its seven-point proposal of July, 1971, that was widely regarded as more conciliatory to the present Saigon regime.

The clarification again called for the resignation of President Thieu-although a demand that the United States be directly invoived in his ouster was dropped —and also said that, accomplish-ing this, the Viet Cong would then enter directly into negotiations with the remnants of the current Saigon administration. The policy, however, of the administration regarding the war and its social programs—such as pacification-would have to be

U.S.-Chinese Contacts The United States is now in intermittent contact with the Chinese through meetings between ambassadors here. Two meetings have taken place. As for the Soviet Union, Mr. Nixon scheduled to visit Moscow in May and there was speculation here that, as one form of pressure, Hanoi would welcome a Soviet cancellation of the visit. Both the Peking and Moscow visits by Mr. Nixon are known to have caused some nervousness in Hanoi about tha possibility of a deal on Indochina behind Vietnamese backs.
Mr. Le offered little encouragement today about the prospect of private talks if the plenary seasions cannot be held. He denounced Mr. Nixon for unilaterally revealing the contents of the last private round conducted by Henry A. Kissinger, Mr. Nixon's national security adviser, and Le Duc Tho, a member of the North Vietnamese Politburo. "It is Nixon who has torpedoed all the means of negotiation," Mr. Le

He said that the United States was not in a position of strength since it was undergoing defeats in all three Indochinese areas. On the American side, officials are not ruling out the possibility that, in addition to rigidity in the Communist negotiating position, Hanoi may launch some major military action before the November elections, to test the results of the Vietnamization

To Halt War

PHILADELPHIA, March 29 (AP).—A federal judge refused yesterday to dismiss a suit ceeking to block government funds for the Vietnam war.

District Judge Joseph S. Lord 3d said that the claim by seven peace activists that the war is unconstitutional "is not so insubstantial as to warrant dismissal," as the government had requested.

He added: "The citizen's interest in having his nation free of war was the very ona being considered when the Constitution was written, vesting the power to authorize war with the Congress, rather than the President."

Judge Lord also granted the plaintiffs' request to convene a three-judge panel to hear the case. He passed that request along to the Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The suit, seeking a permanent injunction against funding of the conflict, claims that the war has been prosecuted without the necessary congressional declaration of war. Therefore, it says, con-duct of the war violates the Constitution, various treatles and international law.

Laird Is Target :

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird is named as defendant. President Nixon had also been named a defendant, but in January Jodge Lord granted a goveroment petition to dismiss the charge against the President. The judge rejected several arguments which the government brought in favor of dismissing the case, including assertions that the government was actually being sued and that this was forbidden unless the government consents, and that the plaintiffs lacked standing to bring such a suit.

To the government claim that the suit involved a political question ontside the realm of judicial power, the judge replied that he had no power to decide such an issue. He encouraged the gov-ernment to bring up the argument when the case reaches the three-jodge appeals panel.

The suit was filed by the Rev. David Gracie, urban missioner for the Philadelphia Episcopal Diocese: John S. Atlee, Henry Brown, John Malinowski, Joseph Miller, Helen K. Schotz and Seymour Schotz. All are long-time peace activists in the Philadelphia area. Human Conservation

In acknowledging the plaintiffs' justification for the case, the judge called the war a "human conservation issue" which "necessarily causes some threat to the personal safety and security of all citizens." Another reason for granting the plaintiffs' standing, the judge said, was that the war has both economic and noneconomic impact upon all citizens.

Judge Lord said that suits against officers of the government are permitted if the officers are sued for actions that are alleged to be violations of the Constitution, even though the official may have received authority from the legislature.

Mindszenty Is 80; Church Role Cut-VIENNA; March 29 (UPI) --

Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty today celebrated the 80th birthday that marked the end of his right to vote for the next Pope. It was his first birthday in freedom in 23 years. Under a 1970 papal decree he lost his right to vote for the next Pope and his right to membership in the various Vatican departments which make up the church's central government. He retains the title of cardinal. He left Hungary last Sept. 28 after 23 years of imprisonment, house arrest or asylum in the U.S. Embassy in Budapest. The

Pakistan Reportedly Received U.S.-Built Planes From Arabs

By Malcolm W. Browne

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan, March 29 (NYT) -Military sources disclosed yesterday that the air forces of Libya and Jordan provided American-hullt combat aircraft to Pakistan during its war with India and that some of these planes were still in Pakistani

After India and Pakistan fought another brief war last December Jack Anderson, the syndicated columnist in Washington, made public reports of secret White House strategy sessions at which Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, raportedly asked whether the United States "had the right" to transfer American arms from Jordan or Saudi Arabia to Pakistan. During the war there were unconfirmed reports that Iran also had provided help to Pakistan's Air Force. In fact, most of the jet transports of Pakistan's airline took refuge in neighboring Iran to escape Indian attacks.

House Passes $24.6-Billion Pollution Bill

(UPI).-The House of Representatives voted today to set a goal of pollution-free waters by 1985 and authorize stringent limits on pollution discharges as part of a $24.6-billion program that would have enormous impact on American industry.

The vote was 378 to 140. Sponsors of the 217-page bill, accompanied by a 424-page committee report, said it was the most expensive and comprehensive environment mcasure ever adopted by the House, Critics complained that it sets a less rigid timetable than was approved by the Senate.

A key feature of the House messure provides that Congress shall vote again in two years on the 1985 goal and on the discharge limits set for 1981 after the National Academy of Sciences reviews the economic impact.

Supporters of the bill which emerged virtually unchanged despite the long amending process, said the study was needed because of estimates that it could cost industry and federal, state and local governments billions of dollars to implement the prohibition on Such tests would dispel the mystery surrounding the recent construction of between 90 and 100 very large Soviet missile silos.

Defense and other administration officials bave speculated that the silos were designed for either advanced versions of the existing SS-9 and SS-11 ICBMs or for entirely new missiles.

Asked at a news conference Monday here what significance he attached to the fact that the Russians apparently have stopped construction of older-type missiles and have not due any additional large new silos for several months.

From time to time in the past the Russians have stopped 'new starts" on missile silos for periods of from nine to 14 months, while completing work on construction already under way.

By William Beecher expected to be installed in the

It is known that intelligence analysts in Washington estimate the Soviet Union is prepared for test launchings "imminently" from the missile test center at Tyu-rattam, in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan,

At the time the new design silos first were spotted at several different operational missile complexes in the Soviet Union identical new silos were built concurrently at Tyuratam. Construction on the new silos is reported to have begun in late 1970.

Familiar Pattern Analysts pointed out that such a pattern is familiar. They said that in the case of two previous missile programs, those of the SS-11 and SS-9, the Soviets built new operational silos and new test siles at the same time. Then. after a number of test launches from Tyuratam, they quickly deployed the new missiles, thus saving time.

Some analysts in Washington believe the Russians may decide to begin their test firings just before President Nixon arrives in Moscow in late May "to strength-Asked whether the Soviets will en their bargaining position." The President has said he hopes

U.S. Publishes a Master List Of Food Contamination Limits

(NYT) -The Food and Drug Administration has made public a master list of food contamination limits that puts upper bounds on such unwanted ingredients as rodent hairs in the peanut butter and fruit fly eggs in the

While many Americans might be surprised to learn that the limit is anything above zero in either case, the federal agency maintains that even modern technology cannot eliminate all defects from foods.

"The defect levels set by the commissioner of food and drugs represent a level below which the defect is both unavoidable under current technology and presents no health hazard," said the of-ficial announcement published today in the Federal Register.

The limit for peanut butter is an average of 50 insect fragments in a 100-gram sample or two rodent hairs in the same amount. The rejection point for corn meal comes when one-fifth of the sub-samples in a given sampla of the product contain as many as five "rodent pellet fragments" for 50 grams and an additional one-fifth have more than two rodant pellet fragments.

Discussion Set for Next Week

By Robert Siner WASHINGTON, March 29 (IHT) —A Republican motion to end the probe into the fitness of Richard G. Sen. Eastland issued his ruling after Sen. Roman Hruska, R., Neb., the ranking Republican on the committee, asked for an immediate executive session. Sen. Eastland explained that he couldn't call the session at once because a quorum was lacking with only seven of the 16 committee members present.

In requesting the closed session, Sen. Hruska said that the hearings should be ended because they are getting nowhere.

"These questions have become repetitious," he declared. "There has been no truth nor competent evidence of any wrongdoing on the part of Mr. Kleindienst. There has been no evidence of any link between the settlement and the Republican convention."

Later, Sen. John V. Tunney, D., Calif., said that he would try during the executive session to widen rather than close off the investi-

He explained that he would ask that the committee also look into charges, made last week by Life magazine, that top California Republicans moved to stop prosecution under the Corrupt Practices Act of a heavy Republican contributor and personal friend of President Nixon and that Mr. Kleindienst had absolved them of any wrongdoing.

After Sen. Eastland's ruling today, the committee heard testimony from ITT president Harold S. Geneen, who was recalled for further questioning after he testifled two weeks ago.

Shredding of Papers

The committee also heard testimony today from Howard S. Albel, ITT general counsel, who read a report on the shredding of various documents in ITT's Washington office soon after Mr Anderson made his charges of a settlement-convention deal.

Mr. Albel told the committee that none of the documents that were destroyed linked the settlement with the San Diego convention and that the only papers concerning San Dlego that were destroyed were brochures of the hotels in the city and prellminary convention arrangements for longed to ITT lobbyist Mrs. Dita D. Beard.

Mrs. Beard purportedly wrote the memorandum linking the settlement with the convention contribution that was the basis of Mr. Anderson's charges. She has since termed the memo a 'iroax" and a "fraud."

The ITT lobbyist has been in Denver hospital with angina pectoris since the hearings began. Her doctors say that it may be si: months before she can return to Washington to testify. An attempt by a special juniciary subcommittee to question Mrs. Beard in her hospital bed last Sunday ended abruptly when she suffered a new attack.

Mrs. Beard's doctors said today that her condition was much improved and that, if the improvement continued, she might be released from the hospital this

However, they added that she still would not be able to go to Washington to testify but would remain "where we can watch her for a few weeks and then we'll see what happens."

Cabinet Shift In Poland to Speed Reform

Premier Announces Change in Parliament

WARSAW, March 29 (Reuters). -Polish Premier Piotr Jaroszewice made major cabinet changes today, appointing two new dep nty premiers, apparently with the aim of speeding up economic reforms promised by the yearold regime of Communist party chief Edward Gierek.

The changes, announced to the Sejm (parliament), reflected the technocratic approach of Mr. Gierek, who has promised to modernize the lagging economy while raising wages and living

They were the latest in a series of changes by the party chief since he took power in December, 1950, after food-price rlots which toppled former party leader Władysław Gomulka.

The government today set up three new ministries-for wages and prices, for higher education technology and science, and for environment and land resources

A second education ministry was established to deal only with primary and secondary education. It is headed by Jerzy Kuberski, a Worsaw party official and a teacher by profession.

Other Changes

Other changes included Marian Sliwinski, who replaced Mr. Jan Kostrzewski at the Health Ministry, and Wincenty Kawalec as wages, jabor and social-welfare minister-The establishment of a special

On the foreign-policy front, Mr. Jaroszewicz told the Sejm his government will shortly submit its nonaggression treaty with Bonn for ratification.

He warned the West German Christian Democratic party, which opposes the treaty and a similar one with Moscow, that ratification is the only way to with Eastern Europe.

Mr. Mintoff Gets Malta's Price

aulte a bargainer. It took him a year and a series of feints to his left, toward an obliging Russia, Libya and China. But he ended up getting the British to triple the rent they (and NATO) pay for use of British bases on the island. He got a seven-year lease, a term which should give Malta time to reduce its economic dependence on the bases. And he moved significantly nearer his goal of establishing the former British colony's "neutrality": The new agreement does not identify Malta as a NATO base, though NATO ships may dock, and it precludes Soviet use of Malta's military facilities. This last point was of special interest to the BrItish, whose willingness to accept the deal can otherwise be attributed chlefly to an appropriate regard for Malta's traditional friendship and for the economic straits it would be in without the bases. Malta is small, scarcely the size of the District of Columbia: Mr. Mintoff's political base is the labor unions and he could not easily take from them 6,000 jobs.

The Maltese negotiations have not been so important for themselvee (except, of course, for the Maltese) as for the light

Dom Mintoff, Prime Minister of Malta, is they throw on new strategic conditions in the Mediterranean. Moscow's decision to follow the American example in conducting naval diplomacy there, coming as it did during a period of protracted tension in the Mideast, has given the sea a strategic importance it lacked while the Russian Navy was small and the Mideast was relatively quiet. One result has been a rising interest in "neutralism" among those littoral or island states which see political risk, if also some economic advantage, in big-power naval competition. Other states—Greece in respect to Washington, Egypt in respect to Moscow -have reacted by consolidating their naval links with one or another big power. "The Mediterranean," to be sure, is not one region but many. Malta's particular policy will not serve or satisfy all states in and on the sea. As it intensifies, however, Soviet-American naval rivalry increasingly is the common factor by which their policies are defined.

> As Europe seems to become more settled, the Mediterranean seems to become less so. It is a contradiction which Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brezhnev might usefully address in

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Haiti Holds Out a Hand

Smiling and with extended hand, Haiti'a effective ruler, former Papa Doc consort Luckner Cambronne, has come to Washington, met with American officials and the international banks, and gone home declaring himself "extremely pleased" with the "understanding" he received. The basis of his satisfaction, in terms of immediate new money, seems to be slight. Haiti has immense needs but, because of the blight of the late Dr. François Duvalier, few projects are ready to be "banked." Nonetheless there are hints of change.

Minister of Defense and Interior, Mr. Cambronne was chief of thuggery and shakedowns for Papa Doc until he died a year ago. Improbable as it may seem, he has assumed a dominant but not tyrannical position in the regime of Papa Doc's anointed successor, his son, President-for-life Jean-Claude (Baby Doc) Duvalier, who is now 20. The tight control remains, the savagery seems to have abated. Mr. Cambronne and the new president have promised amnesty to Haiti's political exiles, a large group inelnding an outsized share of the country's available talents. One who returned, Clovis Charlot, died shortly thereafter of what Mr. Cambronne described at his Washington press conference as an unspecified disease. But hundreds of returnees are safely at

Haiti's own "disease" is more readily specified: Duvalier's criminal misrule, which left his nation of now fire million mostly wretched and illiterate peasants more bereft than they had been before. There are, for instance, only an estimated 100,000 jobs in the country's money economy. But in the year aince his father's death, Jean-Claude Davalier has presided over some beginnings of economic change: A quickie divorce law to encourage tourism, a greater readiness to offer American investors what our own Commerce Department delicately calls "access to an inexpensive nearby labor force," and a considerable public relations effort capped by Minister Cambronne's sojourn in Washington. The international banks are watching with interest

The American ambassador in Port-au-Prince, Clinton E. Knox, widely known as a booster of Jean-Claude Duvalier, is said to have urged a renewal of major support for the black Caribbean republic; no substantial American aid has flowed there in 10 years. Whether the current Haitian government is competent to serve Its people's needs is, however, yet to be demonstrated, A larger question is what is the correct development strategy for a country so backward, poor and overpopulated as Halti.

'New Life' at the UN

Morse, R., Mass., to be an under secretarygeneral of the United Nations arouses mixed feelings. As top-ranking American in the UN Secretariat, Mr. Morse will be replacing the late Ralph J. Bunche though his duties will not be identical with Mr. Bunche's. Many at Turtle Bay and elsewhere will regret that President Nixon did not designate an experienced diplomat for the post.

Another cause for regret at home will be the further depletion of the ranks of liberal, internationalist Republicans in the House, where Mr. Morse had built an impressive record and 12 years of seniority. The qualitiee that made him an able and useful member of the House and of its Foreign

Malta Accord

A satisfactory agreement has at last been signed between Britain and Malta for the continued use of the island's defense facilitles. It is disconcerting, however, that NATO should have been thrown into soch a prolonged tizzy by Mr. Mintoff's acrobatics. Ite fear that Russla would win the auction and move in has fortunetely heen banishedat a price in hard cash. Italy came out hadly. Owing to left-wing pressure, it was loath to provide the permanent alternative facilities in Sicily on which NATO had counted. Instead, Italy pressed for acceptance of Mintoff's terms and chipped a few extra millions into the kitty.

-From the Daily Telegroph (London).

The action of Italian diplomacy, strongly encouraged by Washington and NATO, was decisive. Throughout the dealings this diplomacy was always careful not to go it alone. It always urged interdependence with the Atlantic alliance, associating the United States and West Germany in the quest for technical means of agreement.

Conducting his game like a poker player, waving the Soviet card at one time, the Libyan card at another, Mr. Mintoff appeared, throughout these nine months of arduous negotiations, to be gambling on rivalries among NATO allies. The latter, spurred by Joseph Luns, legitimately worried by the Soviet thrust into the Mediterranean, finally faced up to it with more cohesion than the impetuous Maltan prime minister had expected. If the latter did not really lose the game, the accord signed is in any case a success for NATO that is more than a matter of prestige.

As for Mr. fleath, after the disappointments which his attitude toward the miners' strike caused him recently, he is now likely to feel that firmness can pay off.

Jerusalem: The Enduring Miracle

By James Reston

JERUSALEM—The mood in Jerusalem this Easter week is remarkably calm. The Palm Sunday pilgrimage wandered over the stony hills of this lovely city in brilliant sunshine, and even the Israell politicians, who pay little attention to the church bells and singing pilgrims, seem to have acquired a new serenity.

It is now almost five years since the six-day war with the Arab states, and, despite King Hussein's latest peace proposals, the diplomatic stalemate continues. But behind the official propaganda on both sides, there at least the beginning of some innovative and exploratory think. ing about the future.

Both Hussem and the deputy Israell premier, Yigai Allon, talk about different forms of federation and accommodation, and while their concepts are unacceptable and contradictory, there is now at least open acknowledgemeot that the present division of power and land must one day be changed, and the possibility of change is now openly discussed, particularly by thoughtful young men and women.

Nightmares Are Over

Also, the nightmares that troubled officials here a year or 18 months ago now seem less ap-There has always been vague fear that the United States, for its own worldwide purposes, might make a Middle East eccommodation with the Soviet Union at Israel's expense, and some Israeli officials still point to the fate of Nationalist China and Pakistan as evidence that Washington will put its own interests sheed of the interests of its allies. But this is a minor theme now, a mere shadow of an old anxiety, and there is clearly more confidence in the United States here now than there was last Easter.

Moshe Davan, for example, despite his nervous energy, seems satisfied for the time being that the delivery of the U.S. Phanton jets will be maintained and that no deal will be made in Moscov President Nixon that would tip the balance of power in the Middle East against Israel. He does not expect that either Moscow or Washington will agree to limit the flow of arms to either side, but that they will concen-trate on limiting the danger of a direct U.S.-Soviet military confrontation in the area.

As he sees it, the Soviet Union wants to develop its bases in Egypt and develop its naval power as an instrument of political influence elsewhere in the underdeveloped world, but it is not eager for another round of war that might risk the danger of direct Soviet involvement, it is not particularly happy with the new Egyptian and Libyan governments, and is not even eager to see the Suez Canal opened in the near future.

Dayan does not impress a visitor as being in an expansionist or provocative mocd. He does not want to annex a vast Arab population that would dilute the strength of the Jewish majority. yet he can talk generously and philosophically ebout the need to give the present Arab minority the equal human and political rights they do not now have.

There seems, in short, a kind future, let us hope the interests of of confident settling down here now, a recognition that while nothing is satisfactory and nothing settled, the fears of being ebandoned by America or overwhelmed by direct Soviet intervention are no longer as valid as they seemed last year.

The hope is, as Foriegn Minister Abba Eban expresses it, that the Arab states, and particularly the Sadat government in Cairo, will eventually realize that they have exhausted the possibilities of regaining by blg-power or UN diplomacy everything they lost on the battlefield, and that they will finally realize that agreeing to negotiate with Israel is really a lesser concession than agreeing to a "peace settlement" Israel, which they have already accepted in public.

Stalemate to Endure

Meanwhile, it is clear that the present uneasy stalemate will en-dure well beyond the life of the present Israeli government, and that remarkable woman, Premier Golda Meir, now in her 73d year, persuades a visitor that she is now longing for the freedom of retirement and is eager to see the direction of the state pass to a new generation of Israeli leaders.

Seldom in recent years has she seemed more confident, eloquent, or philosophical than she does now, and it will not be easy to find a successor among the ambitious younger leaders in this volatile political atmosphere, for the weakness of greatness is that it always seems irreplaceable in a crisis. Still, she talks as if she is determined to be liberated. She goes out of her way, despite her suspicions of the "Arabists" in the U.S. State Department, to praise President Nixon for keep-ing every promise he ever made to her, and with the Washington flank a little more serious, she will undoubtedly have her own way in the end.

In short, Israel is settling down – Letters –

The diehards (curiously, they are called by the London press the "rightwingers") have announced a national strike, have sworn that there will be a great backlash against Westminster but their protests are somehow hollow. It is, after all, difficult for representatives of a people who swear eternal ties to England to take offense at England's decision to take over directly the executive and legislative functions.

In the Irish Republic, there is considerable jubilation. Premier Jack Lynch instantly announced that he was instructing his ambassador to return to Westminster, in recognition of London's suspension of the parliamentary body which, over the years, has been most directly involved in suppressing the rights and ignoring the interests of the Catholic minority.

There are those who feel that Heath succumbed to pressure— that in effect he rewarded the TRA for their bombings and their mayhem by moving in the direction the IRA presumably favors, the direction of lessening the influence of the Orangemen. Even so, Heath did the reasonable thing-advocated, by the way, in this column in the summer of 1970, after a visit to Ulster which suggested that the Catholic minority indeed continue to fear Stormont, but have considerable faith in Westminster. Not for any historic reasons—Westminter has been to Irish freedom over the centuries what the jailer is to the inmate. But Westminster is not nowadays disposed to act as an instrument of oppression, and will almost certainly proceed to come up with a Bill of Rights that will ease the forebodings of the Catholics.

Plebiscite Talk

What upsets the Orangemen is all the talk of plebiscites. Under the terms of the instrument of Irish partition, Northern Ireland cannot secede from Britain except by vote of its parliament. In the absence of a parliament, one assumes that the vote would be that of the people, who are two-

The Treasures of Tutankhamenon View At British Museum

By Max Wykes-Joyce ONDON, March 29 (1911) — Queen Elizabeth today open ed an exhibition at the British Museum celebrating the 50th anniversary of the discovery in Egypt of the tomb of Tutankh-amen by the archaeologist How-rd Carter. The exhibition, sponsored by ard Carter. the museum in conjunction with the Times (London) and the Sunday Times, consists of 50 of the several thousand objects found in the royal tomb.

The objects, from the collection of the Cairo Museum, are on loan from the Egyptian gov-ernment until Sept. 30. A similar exhibition was held in Paris in 1967 (February to September) Just included fewer exhibits.

Tutankhamen's short reign (1361-1352 BC) came at a period of extreme decadence, a time when his immediate predecessor, the heretical Akhensten (Amenhotep IV) brought the kingdom to the brink of destruction. From a purely artistic standpoint then, the treasures are not of particular importance in the history and development of Egyptian aesthe-

According to SOFRES, a French opinion poll, half the bald men in the United States wear toupees. In Germany, the figure drops to 30 percent, and in France it is as low as 2 percent.

"The reason, quite simply," Mr. Dessange said, "is that Frenchmen have too much taste to put up with those horrors that have en on the market so far."

As he talked, Mr. Dessange pulled a gruesome collection out of his attaché case. "Look at this," he said, picking up what looked like a middle-aged scalp. "That's what les Américains sell. Made in Hong Kong, of course." The toupee looked the more pathetic for having a pinkish,

The big problem with a toupee, Mr. Dessange explained, is to put it on-and have it stay on, "even in the most intimate moments.

The classic toupee is glued on, which Mr. Dessange said, is messy, unhealthy and generally uncomfortable "Have you ever stopped to think that a man wearing a toupee can't scratch his head?" he asked plaintively.

Anyway, after toupees came hair transplants, which Mr. Des-sange does not think much of. Then there is an even more barbarous method that involves sliding a nylon thread in and out of the scalp and equipping the outside loops with metallic hooks. "That's downright dangerons and has been condemned by the medical corps," he said.

Old Japanese Tomb Paintings Hailed As Great Archaeological Discovery

By John M. Lee

TOKYO, March 29 (NYT).—Colored murals recently discovered in a burial mound in central Japan are being hailed by experts here as one of this country's higgest archaeological discoveries since World War II.

The Agency for Cultural Affairs said Monday that the murals would be designated as special historic relies and a national treasure. The murals were found in the village of Asuka, south of Nara, one of the ancient capitals of Japan.

The richty colored pictures on the walls of the tomb are believed to have been completed between the late 7th and early 8th centuries. The style of the paintings is further indication of Chinese and Korean cultural influences on early Japan, government experts said.

The murals were uncovered last week in a burial mound known as the Takamatsuzuka tumulus. Members of an archaeological research institute in Nara bad been investigating the mound since early this month.

The mound measures from 19.4 yards in diameter and about 5.5 yards in height. Inside is a stone enclosure over a yard wide, nearly 3 yards long and about 1.2 yards high, holding a lacquered wooden coffin about 2 yards long. The paintings, in more than seven colors, were found on the walls of the enclosure. They had been applied to plaster covering the stone walls.

The murals depict white tigers, blue dragons, men and women dressed Chinese style and carrying sticks, a sun of besten gold. a moon of beaten silver and constellations showing the North Star. Masso Suconga, head of the institute that unearthed the tomb said that the quality of the paintings could be compared with those at the Horyuji Temple in Nara, which are considered the best of their kind in Japan.

However, a spokesman for the cultural assets protection commission said, "It is an epic-making discovery from the standpoint

Forecasts Decline

Mr. Ulrich forecast a 20 percent fall in operating profit over the current year and added that decline would have taken place in the first two months but for very good results in the bank's securities business.

Noting that 1972 would be markedly worse for German banks than 1971, he said the expected fall in operating profits could mean difficulties in maintaining dividends for 1972 at their present rates unless nther earnings rise

The diminishing margin—at 3.3 percent last year—between interest paid and interest received as well as rising personnel costs damajed earnings last year and threatens to do so further in 1972, Mr. Ulrich said.

Only exceptional profits on foreign exchange and securities business last year lifted the operating profit, he added. Mr. Ulrich warned that the bank will have to make major effort to avert further cost increase, including a firm stand in the current wage negotiations. In addition, the bank will have to lover further the interest rate paid on sight savings deposits and alse bank charges. But he gave no specific date for the introdiction of these measures. Hendrik Cappuyns, who heads the executive boards of both national operating companies of the group, told the annual press conference here that last year's international monetary crisis made it very difficult to compare results with those of previous years. The group, which exports about 70 percent of its nutput of photographic equipment, expanded its sales by about 13 percent in terms of volume. In terms of deutsche marks, turnover rose 10.4 percent to 2,095 billion DM and in terms of Belgian francs by 124 percent

Mr. Emminger, who presided a two-day meeting of Working Party Three of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, said its conclusion was that both the adjustment of "the real underlying situation" and interest rate relationships had made some progress.

He said the delegates were not particularly concerned by the latest U.S. trade figures, because it takes several months for the adjustment process from the currency realignment to show positive results. "The development of the U.S. adjustment process is going according to expectations,"

Mr. Emminger said that countries with large surpluses will have to "finance" continued U.S. deficits hy taking in more dollars. This is particularly true for Japan, he

Representatives of Arthur D. Little Inc., Grumman Aerospace, Raytheon and the Spectrolab division of Textron have agreed to study the concept of a large-scale satellite system to harness the energy of the sun for use on earth. The companies have developed a basic concept envisaging a eatellite with a large area of solar cells which would convert the sun's radiation into electricity. This would be transformed to microwaves and transmitted to earth, where a receiving station would convert the microwaves to direct current electricity at very high efficiency.

ICI Forecasts Unchanged Profit

Jack Callard, chairman of Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI), told shareholders that first-quarter profit is likely to he similar to that of the final 1971 quarter. He said the recent coal miners' strike and the U.S. measures taken against imports of fibers depressed profits in the first quarter of 1972. He said the company's prospects depend significantly on the extent and speed with which the government's efforts to expand the economy increase requirements for chemical industry products and so help to overcome or mitigate the poor start to the year. The company's problems have "been greatly aggravated by large quantities of low-priced polyester filament yarn being imported into Britain from Japan which would previously have been destined for the United States

He also said Rank's decision to participate in the search for oll in the North Sea was comparable to the company's decision to introduce Xerography to Europe. He said Rank has reached suf-ficient size to take the calculated risk involved in the North Sea venture and described as "encouraging" the information already available on the areas held by consortiums of which Rank

LOS ANGELES, March 29 (AP-DJ). - Western Bancorporation said today its insurer has refused. to reimburse it for any of the approximately $50 million in losses incurred when its Swiss operation went under in 1970,

Western Bancorporation, holding company for United California Bank, which ran the Basel operation, said ft filed suit Feb. 18 here against Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York,

According to the suit, Fidelity & Casualty notified Western on Jan. 13 that it was rescinding the bond's coverage because, the insurer alleged, Western had concealed and failed to disclose "the nature and extent of the insured's foreign operations and other related facts."

Western said in the suit that there was "no ground" for the decision and that such action was barred by law.

Lost on Commodities Maris Western liquidated the Basel branch after it discovered big losses on the operation's books in Angust, 1970. The company said the losses stemmed from specula-tion in commodities and metals futures by the Basel bank's management, which had con-cealed the losses through falsified statements and accounts.

Airline Needs Renewal To Stay in Business

By Philip Greer

NEW YORK, March 29 (WP). -Pan American World Airways has reached agreement with lts bankers for an extension of the $270 million line of credit that the troubled airline needs to stay in business.
The credit, which expires on March 31, 1973, must be renewed by the end of this month. Otherwise. It will become a short-term liability, to be listed as a current charge. That would put Pan Am's capital below that required under the terms of other loan agreements and could force the giant airline into a reorganization.

Nelther the airline nor First National City Bank, leader of the 38-member lending group, would comment un the negotiations, which have been in progress since mid-February. At its shareholders' meeting yesterday, Citibank chair-man Walter Wriston declined to make any statement about the loan. A Pan Am spokesman said an announcement is expected to-morrow. That is the last full business day for tha company to escape the balance sheet effects of the loan, since many businesses here will be closed on Good Fri-

Indications that the loan has been extended came in a message for Pan Am employees from Najeeb E. Halaby, former chairman and chief executive officer. who was deposed last week. Mr. Halaby sald, "That we have preserved our balance sheet and credit is testifled to by the willingness of our banks to make continued edequate loans available during the coming year."

Extension of the loan does not surprise airline observers, who feel that the banks are too deenly committed to the company to back away from it now. But there has been some surprise that the extension has not been announced as yet.

In another part of his message, Mr. Halaby, who has not been available for comment, described his resignation. He said that when the directors prepared for the annual meeting, the board wanted to give a "candld and complete report on our company and its leadership." He said be opened the meeting by discussing his term and then asked for a vote of confidence from the directors. offering to resign if the support was not granted. "We officers retired from the boardroom and after a couple of bours the board informed me that they had accepted my resignation." he said.

Stock Exchange suffered their fourth decline in a row today. A slight chill gripped Wall Street from the opening hour, due to yesterday's reports that the nation last month sustained its second biggest trada deficit ln history and to the slower growth in leading economic indicators for both January and Pehruary.

Brokers noted that mutual funds were active in switching commitments—or dressing up their portfolios prior to the close of the March quarter—with only a single trading day remaining. The marker will be closed in observance of Good Friday.

International oils, some of them representing massive holdings in the vaults of institutional investors, absorbed some of this selling pressure in continued weakness. Posting 1972 lows on the active list were Standard Oil of California, down 1 1 2 to 54 1/2; Texaco, off 3 3 to 30, and Standard Oil of New Jersey, off 78 to 69 1 8. These issues have suffered from moves by foreign producing nations to obtain a participation in operations and, on the home front, to soma unfavorable forecasts by analysts regarding first-quarter earnings. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.99 to 933.02, Volume slipped to 13.86 million shares from yesterday's 15.38 million.

Western Union, slumping 3 1,2 to 49 1 2, was the largest point loser on the active list. The company has announced it would redeem its 7 1/4 percent convertible debentures on April 28. This weakened the stock, because the recemption will increase the number of common shares outstanding. G.D. Searle surrendered 1 1/8 at 87 1'4. It said it does not expect its new low calorie sweetener to be commercially available before 1974.

Winn-Dixie Stores, weakest of the grocery chain group, fell 1 1 4 to 50 3 4. First National Stores dropped 7.8 to 28 1.8 after sliding 3 1 8 yesterday when it terminated merger discussions with Katy Industries. The latter dipped 3 S at 12 5 8. Great Atlantic & Pacific, the nation's largest grocery chain, eased 1.4 at 19 1'4. Kroger gave up 1.4 at 28 1.2. The American Stock Exchange

Economic Prosperity a Threat to Sterling

By James C. Furlong LONDON, March 29 (AP-DJ).—A number of economists and businessmen believe that the economic prosperity sought by the government will prove unhealthy for the poind sterling.

They argue that if the government succeeds in its attempts to speed economic growth and reduce unemployment, demand for imports will rise and Britain's trading position will deteriorate. This could necessitute a devaluation in a year or two, they contend.

The latest impetus for conjecture was provided last week when Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber announced a highly expansionary budget. 'I am sure that all members (of tha House of Commons) will agree that the lesson of the international balance-of-payments upsets of the last few years is that it is neither necessary nor desirable to distort domestic economies to an imacceptable extent in order to maintain unrealistic exchange rates, whether they are too low or too high." he said. Flexibility Implied

To some observers, this statement implied a certain flexibility about the pound's value and an unwillingness to employ the type of strong defictionary action that the Labor government used in fruitless support of the pound. Mr. Barber's motive appeared to be to reassure businessmen that they would not be caught in 1973 by a squeeze on the economy. . At least one banker read more into the datement than that, saving that Mr. Barber has "enticipated" tha need for a devaluation and was attempting to prepare Britain psychologically for such a move.

The Barber statement drew fire from the Labor opposition. Harold Lever, financial secretary to the Treasury for two years under the Labor government, sald the comment indicated a lack of confidence that Britain could compete effectively in international trade. He also contended that if the government did encounter balance-of-payments problems, the statement could cause an early run on sterling.

Among the first to express doubts that the pound's value could be maintained was Nicholas Kaldor, a prominent Cambridge University economist and former Labor government adviser. Last Dec. 19. Mr. Kaldor said the pound's new central rate of $2.6057 (compared to $2.40 prior to the realignment) made sterling "over-

Record Backing for Sterling

Privately, many bankers consider a devaluation a distinct possibility. One said there was a "general feeling" in the foreign exchange market that the pound's value might be adjusted downward by the end of 1973. It is fair to add that one school of thought holds it is much too early to predict a devaluation.

Ironically, the doubts about the pound come at a time when sterling is backed by a record £2.683 billion of official monetary reserves and is trading above its new central rate. In addition, Britain's total currency inflow, equivalent to the overall balance-of-payments surplus, was what the Bank of England described as a "massive" £3.228 billion in 1971, up from £1,287 billion

Much of the inflow was accounted for hy speculative funds. Sterling securitles yields still are attractive, hut how long they remain so is not predictable. Of the total currency inflow, the key

It is this account, specifically its visible trade component that could he threatened by growth. And this growth could be provided by the new budget, which aims for a 5 percent rise in real gross domestic product, compared with the 1 percent achieved in 1971.

The Bank of England commented in its March quarterly bulletin, "The performance on visible trade, though impressively strong, was not quite so reassuring as the figures suggest. The surplus reflects a faster rise in export than import pricesthe increase in U.K. export prices also outstripped those of competing countriesand a comparatively slow growth in the volume of imports because of the slack domestic economy." Of the rise in export prices, the Treasury commented this week that too great an increase could endanger sales abroad. And, of course, the economic sizckness that retarded import growth is now under attack by the government.

Another source of worry about the pound is the impact of Eritain's expected entry into the Common Market next January. The government has estimated its contributions to the EEC budget would involve a net cost of £100 million to the balance of payments in 1973, with the cost rising to £200 million in the fifth year of member-

Investments in a dynamic country?

We've launched

The new fund is managed by "Interfonds" investment Trust Company, Basle, with the Swiss Bank Corporation acting as custodian bank.

The aim is to offer you a chance to participate in a carefully-selected portfolio of Japanese securities supervised by specialists. And a stake in Japan's economic future.

Selecting the right Japanese securities can pose problems for the private investor; after all, Japan is a far-off country and he's unlikely to be familiar with the names of many Japanese companies.

This is where the mutual fund comes in. Close contact with top Japanese economists and stock-market specialists, expert management, balanced risk distribution by economic sector and company.

It all adds up to the ideal vehicle for the private investor who wants to place part of his capital in Japanese securities. Ask for the detailed brochure containing information on Japan and the past performance of the Japanese market together with a summary of the Fund Regulations and a subscription form. Just mail the coupon.

Swiss Bank Corporation, 4002 Basie (Switzerland) Please send me the detailed brochure on JAPAN PORTFOLIO, the new Swiss mutual fund for Japanese securities.

BANQUE FRANÇAISE DU COMMERCE EXTERIEUR

The annual General Meeting of shareholders, presided over by Mr. Jacques CHAINE, Chairman of the Board, assisted by Mr. Georges ASSEMAT, Vice-Chairman, took place on March 22, 1972, with a view to approving and passing the accounts for the 1971 accounting period.

The balance sheet, which reflects an increase of 25% (as compared to last year's 22%) shows a total of around Fr. 31

Transactions via signature, acceptances and "avais" at short, medium, and long term, are up by 20% and account for 71.2% of the balance steet total, as against the 74.7% at December 21 1970

As for "Buyers Credits," the total of utilisations and confirmations concerning their long term fraction, financed by the B.F.C.E., rose from Fr. 3,262 million to Fr. 4,280 million. Funds earmarked for the said credits—as well as for the financing of the longer maturities of the "Suppliers' Credits"—increased and were of more diverse origins, chiefly as a result of a first public debenture issue of an amount of Fr. 250 million.

Short term resources, both in franc and foreign currencies, stand at Fr. 4,401 million and their progression—particularly noticeable as regards non-resident accounts, which represent 41% of the total—have made possible a progress in the portfolio as well as in loans to banks and correspondents.

After setting aside various provisions—among others, a provision for the Corporation Income Tax (Fr. 35.700,000); provisions for the benefit of staff (Fr. 3.535,000) and paid holidays (Fr. 3.654,000)—and after depreciation which reduces to a token sum of Fr. 1 each of the headings "Buildings." "Equipment' and "Furnishings," the net profit stands at Fr. 12,499,408.23 as against the previous year figure of Fr. 10,657,909.68, i.e. a 17.3% increase.

The dividend is brought up from 7.5% to 8% and applies to the whole of the issued capital which was increased to Fr. 56 million in July 1970. The coupon distributed works out, therefore, at Fr. 3—with a corresponding tax Credit of Fr. 4.

The Bank's own funds, after setting aside Fr. 3.967,000 to receive but not taking infer account describes in the condition.

The Bank's own funds, after setting aside Fr. 3,967,000 to reserves, but not taking into account depreciation and provisions, now amount to approximately Fr. 93,175,000.

Both teams displayed excellent judgment on the diagramed

It can be seen that East-West can make four hearts easily, losing one trick in each side suit, but cannot make five unless the defenders give them some help in the spade suit.

Therefore, with favorable vulnerability. North-South should save in five diamonds and be doubled. The question is whether this contract will fail by two tricks or three. With routine defense, the result will be down two, but expert defense can set the contract by three tricks-and

South reached five diamonds doubled by the route shown after East had opened the auction

♦ 1074 Ở J OAQ95 EAST (D) ♠ QJ9 ♥ K865432 ♦6 ♣72 SOUTH ▲K832 ØKJ1083 East and West were vulnerable. The bidding: East 20 Pass Pass Dbl. Pass 3 # 4 N.T. Redbl. Pass Pass West led the heart seven with a weak two-heart bid. A routine opening lead of the heart ace would have cleared the way for the declarer, but West made the fine lead of the heart seven. He was confident that his partner held the heart king to justify his opening bid.

When East won with the heart king he put South to the test by leading the spade queen. As the cards lie, the winning play for South would have been to duck, But East here was a top-class expert who was quite capable of returning the spade queen from a holding of Qxx, tempting South to duck.

Qxx was a much more likely holding for East than QJ9, so South covered with the king, the right percentage play. Here, however, it failed, and the de-fense took three spade tricks to collect a penalty of 500. South reflected ruefully that the last time he faced this situation he also played low, and he was wrong then too.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

SONIA DELAUNAY ALPHABET

By Sonia Delaunay, Thomas Y. Crowell Company, Unpaped Illustrated. $4.95. (Ages 3 to 8).

Reviewed by Milton Glaser

FOR one reason or the other very few of the acknowledged masters of contemporary French painting have produced works expressly for children. So Sonia Delaunay's "Alphabet," by that remarkable woman whose life and work have been interwoven with many of the syant-garde move-ments of the 20th century, is a rare and fortuitous exception. And the vigor and enthusiasm expressed throughout the book make it difficult to believe that Miss Delaunay is now 86 years old.

The book is large, squarish, handsomely designed and beautifully produced from a technical point of view. The quality of paper and printing are both un-usually high for a book in this price range. The artist has employed the iconography of letter forms in many of her earlier works so she is quite comfortable in the idiom. She is renowned as a colorist, and here employs a characteristic palette of bright blue, vermilion, green and black.

The text of the book is hung on the rather thin notion of finding 26 rhymes each beginning with a letter of the alphabet. The verses are well-selected English nursery rhymes, mostly of the nonsense variety, such as "A. B. C. tumble down D./The cat's in the cupboard and can't see me," "Thomas Tattamus took twenty-three T's/To tie a top to two tantrees . . " and "My story's end. ed./My spoon is bended:/If you don't like it./Get it mended." In most cases the illustrations are variations of each letter form, but there are a few department from this principle that seem perverse and somewhat confusing. As an example, for the letter "C" Miss Delaunay has chosen to illustrate the entire word "chor. olate," the first word of the rhyme, instead of confining her self to the initial as she does otherwise. It turns out to be the most complex and dramatic fi-lustration in the book but confusing nevertheless. Other failures of consistency include inexplicably adding several "O" shapes to he "D" picture, some "V" to the "W" page and suddenly introde; ing her only real object, a sus. ning top in the midst of a group of "T's." I'm carping to be sure but these lapses will in fact in pede a child's understanding of Sonia Delaunay's life has been full of wonderful and significant accomplishments in both paint. ing and the applied arts. Nor. she has given us snother reason to celebrate her work.

THE WILDERNESS TATTOO

A narrative of Juan Ortiz. By William O. Steele. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 184 pp. Illustrated. $495. (Ages 10 to 14)

Reviewed by Scott O'Dell

sired a hardy breed of young men, and in the wake of the four voyages of Columbus they came to the New World by the thousands. One of the hardiest was Juan Ortiz, curly-haired, 17, a member of a 1527 expedition sent to explore Florida under the command of Pantilio de Nar-vaez. A year later, as the nar-rative begins, Juan's part in the explorations was cut short by Timucuan Indians who captured him by a rose on the sands of Tampa Bay.

The Indian cacique had him stripped and stretched out over a bed of glowing coals, barbecue style. At the point of death, Juan was saved by Acuera, the daughter of a chieftain, helped to safety in a nearby village, where he eventu-ally was adopted into the tribe. In 1539, though he had become Indian in dress and thought, he went with Hernando de Soto as an official interpreter, traveling him through what beca the southeastern United States and across the Mississipple

The narrative of Juan Ortiz is based upon four accounts, three of them by members of the De Soto expedition, all of whom are indisagreement about what took place. Mr. Steele solved this problem, he says, by selecting only the most reasonable versions. He tells the story in barebone prose, an occasional overabundance of rhetorical questions and pleasant asides like this one:

"They came on crystal springs filled with fish and turtles, all moving through the sunlit waters

SIXTEENTH-CENTURY Spain outlined in glittering rainbox colors . . . There were fountains boiling up white sand and shell from the limestone darkness below; meadows of butterfiles . . . and cool woods where the trees dripped with orchids."

Besides 20 chapters which carry the narrative, eight interludes are sandwiched between. I rather like this unusual construction, but, some may find it confusing, a device by which the author asks the reader to do the author's work. These interludes furnish information about what was going on in Spain at the time, about off-stage events in the New World and just things in general.

We learn that people in Spain thought that somewhere in America there "must live the Golden Man, El Dorado; whose body was covered with gold dust. Of trumpet-blowing apes making sweet music, Or warlike Amazons with only one breast." The Timucuans, we are

North America in one respect "they could steal with both their feet and their hands." But Father Serra has reported the sene dexterity among the Diegueños of California. "The Wilderness Tattoo," with its maps and woodcuts, is a hand-some tribute to Juan Ortiz and to all of Spain's brave young

March 29 (UPI).—Tha antomobila rally which began as a joke for amateurs 20 years ago but which today is the world's toughest, begins here tomorrow with 94 cars. For four days, and more than 6,000 kilometers (3,750 miles), the cars will speed across rough dirt roads in Tanzania and two neighboring countries, Kenya and Uganda.

This is the first year that the East African Safari Rally begins and finishes at Dar Es Salaam, the breezy seaside capital of Tan-

The rally was started by a band of enthusiastic amateurs celebrating tha ocronation of Britain's Queen Elizabeth in 1952. Gradually, it has become a taunting test for overseas drivers. But never in the previous 19 events has an overseas driver won the safart, which has been dominated by East African drivers who know the roads. The rally now is one of two outside Europe which count in the world championship.

Nairohi, capital of Kenya, has been the traditional starting point, but both Uganda and Tanzania threatened to ban the rally going through their territory unless the control point was rotated among the three nations. Last year, Kampala, Uganda, was the starting point.

As usual, drivers must contend with elephants and wild game on the route, with the steamy sea-

> "Life magazine revealed last week that the Justice Department allegedly intervened on behalf of two friends of President Nixon's in a campaign donation case in San Diego,"

"Was this at ITT's behest?" Metterling Esked.

"No. dammit," I said, trying to keep my temper, "ITT hed nothing to do with that. ITT's only involvement with San Diego was the offer they made to finance the Republican convention. Other than that, FIT is blameless, except that there seems to be some story that they ganged up with the Central Intelligence Agency in Chile to defeat President Allende."

"I thought it was Nicaragua." "No, Howard Hughes went to Nicaragua."

"Why would Howard Hughes go to Nicaragua if ITT was having trouble in Chile?" "Because Hughes doesn't care what happens to Chile. You see, Hughes was forced out of the Babamas after he hlew the whistle on the Irvings and so he went to Nicaragua. But now he's in Vancouver." . . .

'Well, who's in San Dlego?" "Nohody but the men Life magazine said the Justice Department covered up for."

"I see." Metterling said. "Why didn't the Republicans get the $400,000 to finence their convention in San Diego from Howard Hughes?"

Because at that time Howard Hughes was living in Las Vegas and the Republicans didn't want to hold their convention in a town that has legalized gambl-

Italy's Good Friday Penitential March

By Stuart Troup CIVITAVECCHIA, Italy (IHT). -The lights will go out Friday night in Civitavecchia, a fishing port 72 kilometers north of Rome, as thousands gather in the darkened streets to watch a procession emanating from the Church of the Dead. On Good Friday, more than 100 men and women in hooded robes, dragging heavy chains strapped to their ankles—some them shouldering heavy wooden crosses—will leave the church at about 8 p.m. The barefoot penitents return to the church about three hours later after a march through the

The way is lighted by torchbearing children dressed in Roman and medieval costumes. The march is accompanied by funereal music. The spectators are generally silent and reverential and the identities of penitents remain secret.

This is thought to be the only surviving penitential procession in Italy, an annual reminder of B tradition of more than 1.000 years and the project of a local lay group called the Arckonfraternita del Gonfalone.

'No one knows when the procession began," says Livio Mosciarelli, the 49-year-old leader—or "priore"—of the con-fraternity. "The origins were lost in the darkness of time," he says. Documents that might have shed light on this custom were destroyed during the 9thcentury Saracen invasion of

Civitavecchia. The mystery of its heginning, however, is perhaps no more interesting than what is known about the Good Friday event, about the church from which it starts out, and about the confraternity that administers

For a millennium, the confraternity has sponsored and managed the procession, gathering together those who sought mortification for their sins and providing the setting and the trappings for penance. The penitents are mostly townspecple hut some come from as far away as Bologna, Turin and Naples. They arrive at the church annex, headquarters for the confraternity. Their identities are revealed only to the secretary of the organization, who provides them with the chains and hooded robes, if they haven't their own, and perhaps a cross to carry in the

Although the procession is religious, accompanied by clerics and carved Christ figures, symbols of the crucifizion, as a form of penance, it does not carry the sanction of the Catholic Church. It is merely condoned.

The confraternity's link with the so-called Church of the Dead-which bears the inscription on its facade "Ave Maris Stella" (Hail, Star of the Sea) -did not come until the 13th century. That link, however, was as macabre as the annual penitential procession-the church was the collecting place for the severed heads of criminals executed in the city by papal authority.

The confraternity had gained a reputation as a peacemaking group, working toward keeping apart the warring factions in 14th-century Rome and also, as a society that aided the sick and the dying. In 1741, it joined with an association in Rome to give aid and comfort to pris-

Thus, it acquired the function of accompanying condemned inmates of the Civitavecchia prison to the church for last rites, then to the scaffold for execution. The heads of the executed were then returned to the church annex and dropped through a trap door in the floor, just below a carved crucifix which the condemned had kissed before heing led to their deaths.

As a reward for its work, the confraternity was allowed to spare the life of one prisoner each year, until the executions ceased in 1870, when papal power was overthrown. The crucifix is still in the annex, but the trap door was sealed in 1920 and the basement was filled with earth to reinforce the

But the confraternity continued to function as a society aiding the sick and dying until the Italian Red Cross was formed in 1932, In 1930, Mr. Mosciarelli notes, there were about 300 members, all actively participating in giving aid, as well as providing the accouterments for the penitents' procession.
"There was no radio, no television, no strikes, no soccer games, no political parties—only one," reminds Mr. Mosciarelli. 'And there was time to go to

Today the confraternity has 30 members, and its activities are largely ceremonial. There is the Good Friday procession, the feast of Santa Lucia on Dec. 13 on the feast of Madoma della Grazie on Sept. 15, with little else for members to concern themselves with.

While its membership has de-creased, the number of penitents who apply for participation in the annual procession has been rising annually. Last year there were 108; this year the confraternity expects at least 120, says Vito Ruoppo, secretary of the group.

The preparations are complete; the floats for the Christ figures have been redecorated, the chains have been strewn across the floor of a room in the annex and members have been assigned duties.

Some will provide medical aid for those marchers who fail to avoid the debris that some of the many thousands of onlookers will sadistically scatter in their path.

"The Communists litter the street with pieces of glass and tacks," claims Mr. Ruoppo. And sometimes they throw lighted cigarettes under the feet of the harefoot penitents." Four of the female members of the confraternity will carry firstaid equipment during tha march, just in case, he says.

If someone is hurt badly enough to require medical aid after the procession, Mr. Ruoppo must administer it himself, he says, lest the identity of the marcher become known
